KENTUCKY GREETING

Given to President Roosevelt in Louisville last Tuesday, and His Response.

Last Tuesday morning our President visited Louisville for two hours and was greeted by perhaps 100,000 people from all parts of the State. The program of the arrangements committee was carried out to the letter. Governor Beckham introduced the President in a few brief remarks and the President responded in his good humored way.

The following are stenographic reports of the speeches of Gov. Beckham and President Roosevelt on the reviewing stand in front of the Courthouse:

Gov. Beckham said: "Ladies and Gentlemen: Not only the people of Louisville, but the people of all Kentucky rejoice today in welcoming among us the President of this great republic. Regardless of all political differences we are here to do honor, not only to the Chief Magistrate of this country, but also to Theodore Roosevelt, the man." (Great applause.)

The President here turned to Mr. Murray and said: "It is useless to attempt to be heard by more than a few. You simply can't."

"We recognize his eminent patriotism, his integrity, his fearlessness, and we all believe him to be a friend of the great common people throughout this country. We also look forward to him during the next four years as the ruler of this republic, to obliterate the last faint line of sectional differences that may exist in this country." (Applause.) I believe that it is in the power of this great man, who more than any President since the big brained and big hearted Lincoln, holds the affections and the confidence of the people of this country—I say, I believe it is more in his power than in the power of any other man to establish beyond question the fact that there is no North, no South, no East and no West in this country. (Applause.)

"I shall not withhold longer the chief attraction of this occasion, and I present to you the President of the United States, the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt." (Loud and prolonged applause.)

President Roosevelt responded: "Governor Beckham, and you, my fellow Americans. (Applause.) Surely any man would be gratified to be greeted in this way by such an audience, and be introduced as you have introduced me, Governor Beckham. (Applause.)

"As the Governor has so well said, upon all the important questions, the questions that infinitely transcend mere partisan differences, we are fundamentally one. (Applause.)

"For in the question of foreign and internal politics, the points upon which there can be no proper division on party lines infinitely exceed in number those upon which there can be such division, and, Governor Beckham, I shall do all that in me lies to justify the hope to which you have given expression and to try to show myself the President of all the people of the United States." (Prolonged applause.)

"And, naturally, I feel peculiarly gratified at seeing, here, today, joined in this procession, the men who wore the Gray. (Great applause.)

"In the dark days—now, keep just as quiet as you can; you won't be able to do anything more than see me, anyhow. (Laughter and applause.) In the dark days each of you fought for the right as it was given him to see the right (a voice, "That's right"), and each of you has left us the right to feel pride not only in your valor, but in your devotion to what you conscientiously believe your duty. (Great applause.)

"And now we are all one (cheers and long continued applause), and as a reunited people we have the right to feel the same pride in the valor of the man who conscientiously risked his life in the Confederate uniform, that we have in the man who fought in the Blue. (Applause.) And as I passed by your ranks, oh, my friends in Gray, today, and saluted the flag of our common country, held up by a man in the gray uniform, I felt that indeed we are one, and that we have been able to show mankind that the greatest war of the century can be followed by the most perfect union that any nation now knows. (Great applause.)

"And in coming to this great and beautiful city of yours, I wish to congratulate you upon the historic—keep quiet, please. There are ladies here. Be just as quiet as possible. And there are small folks present, and if each one will keep in his place the crowd won't sway. Keep quiet over here—don't move up and down.

"I am glad, as I say, of the spirit that makes you wish to dedicate statues like this of Jefferson, like the great statue of Clay on the other side of the Courthouse. It is a fine thing to keep to a sense of historic continuity with the past, and there is one statue that I wish the member in the National Congress from Kentucky to see is put up by the national government, and that is a national statue to Andrew Jackson and the victors of the battle of New Orleans. The fight at New Orleans was one in which the whole nation has a care, as far as the glory and the profit went, and the whole nation, and not any one State, should join in putting that statue up.

"Now, I am going to say good-by, because there is a little movement there, and it will be better for the women and the small people if I let you get away. Good-by." (Cheers and long continued applause.)

As the President turned from facing the front of the stand, the Liederkranz Society swelled out with the "Old Kentucky Home," and the President halted at the rear end of the platform, removed his hat and smilingly listened to the singing. A little baby in white, held up on its mother's shoulders, catching the spirit of the occasion, waved its little hands at the President, and with a very broad grin the President returned the salute.

After the singing was completed the President said:

"Gentlemen: I want to thank you for coming here to sing today, and I want to say just one thing suggested by your presence: We as a people are composed of men of many different stocks from the Old World. Each stock can contribute something of great value to our national life. The people of German origin who have come here have contributed much in many different ways, and, not the least of what they have contributed has been the power to know what joy of living means. (Applause.) There is one word I wish it were possible to translate, but as it is not possible, I wish we could adopt it absolutely as it is—Gemüthlichkeit, for gemüthlichkeit is a mighty valuable asset. I only hope as missionaries you will be able to teach us what it means and how to practice it all through. Good-by."

ENCOURAGING

Situation Grows Brighter For Future of Barbourville.

New Enterprises Starting up and More in Prospect.

At last after one year of hard knocking and constant urging upon our part we are glad to announce that we have been enabled to succeed in awakening at least some interest in our town and the spirit of enterprise is beginning to assert itself in a manner that is very encouraging to us.

Already plans are now on foot to establish a Steam Brick and Tile factory here, and the machinery has already been ordered for the plant. This plant when in operation will have—it is claimed—a capacity of 50,000 brick daily, which means employment for a large number of hands.

There is also a prospect of an Ax-handle factory as we are reliably informed that the plans to establish a factory of that kind are already on foot.

The furniture factory that has been mentioned is still in prospect with every assurance that it will be established, the party proposing to locate here and put in the factory, is now here with his family, and has bought out the Electric Light plant. He proposes to greatly improve the service and will no doubt establish his furniture factory in connection with the light plant.

It has been suggested that an Ice factory and Steam laundry be established here this spring which would no doubt prove paying investments.

When we get all of these improvements and the hum of machinery is heard on all sides and the shrill whistle of the various factories is heard to echo back from the mountain sides, Barbourville will be the Gem of the Mountains.

Now let's encourage these enterprises and show our appreciation of them in every way possible. It will be money to Barbourville and money to those who are today walking the streets idle for lack of something to do to earn a living.

While we are on this subject we wish to say that another industry that would prove profitable both to the farmers, around town and to the town itself would be a canning factory.

Let a factory of that kind be established here and make arrangements with the farmers surrounding our town to furnish the plant with their products, such as corn, tomatoes, pumpkins, beans, peas, &c. This would prove the greatest industry anything and the factory could be kept in operation for more than six months out every year and would mean many thousands of dollars annually to our citizens. Who will give it a start?

FARMERS CLUB.

Dr. W. C. Black, Our Representative, Offers Suggestions that Should be Heeded by Our Farmers.

LET'S ORGANIZE WITHOUT DELAY.

EDITOR ADVOCATE:

By request, and as a matter of personal interest too, we want to bring-through the public messenger, The Advocate—the question of organizing a FARMERS CLUB for Knox County to the attention of the farmers and those interested along agricultural lines and the greater development of our county in a general way.

In accordance with a provision of the Ky. Statutes thirteen thousand dollars is appropriated annually out of the funds in the hands of the Treasurer not otherwise appropriated, for the maintenance and support of the office of Commissioner of Agriculture, Labor and Statistics.

Section 38 of the Statutes governing this Department says in part: "The Commissioner shall promote and encourage, as far as practicable, the organization of agricultural and horticultural societies and other associations in the several counties," and it is the desire of the present incumbent, the Hon. Hubert Vreeland, that this entire amount of thirteen thousand dollars be systematically and equitably expended throughout the entire State in the interest of the farmer in particular and the public in general.

With this object in view that the farmers of Kentucky may derive direct benefit from their taxes alike as other departments of our Commonwealth are empowered by law to dip into the people's tithes for various legitimate purposes for the common welfare and promotion of Kentucky's resources, advancement, enlightenment, and influence, so the Commissioner of Agriculture etc.—taking advantage of the law by application—is exceedingly anxious, as expressed to the writer last winter at Frankfort, to organize a Farmers Club for Knox County and for the other counties in this section of our State where the Department has been unable thus far through the negligence of the people, it seems—to prove to the farmers of Eastern Kentucky by actual deed that we are entitled to and should receive the full support and knowledge of the agricultural department by promoting, encouraging and organizing such a Club in our midst.

What is requisite for the organization of such a Club, and what results can be derived therefrom? The Bureau makes it imperative that no less than twenty members, interested directly or indirectly in the promotion of the agricultural, horticultural, and labor interests of the State may become members, and are eligible to, membership in these Clubs. As soon as a club is organized and officered, (President, Vice President, Treasurer, and Secretary) it shall be the duty of the Secretary to make a report to the Com. of Agriculture etc. at Frankfort giving the names and post-office addresses of each officer and member thereof, and shall report from time to time the name of any member admitted at subsequent meetings. Programs are arranged by the Club, in connection with the State Bureau of Agriculture, Labor and Statistics, for Farmers Institutes and other meetings of similar character and importance. At these institute gatherings of farmers, and those allied along lines of commercialism, papers are prepared and read by members of the Club, and an address is given by some able agriculturist or by the Commissioner himself. As a means of further advancing the interests of such an organization, the Commissioner will award prizes for the best products raised from seeds furnished by the State Department or the National Bureau through it. Though tobacco is a staple product in the limestone districts and Jackson Purchase region; hemp in the blue grass counties; fruit along the Ohio river counties from Cincinnati to Louisville; corn is raised everywhere, and another object of these clubs—as told to us—is to study, from a practical and scientific standpoint, how to cultivate land for the best possible results so that every section of the State would in time, if possible under skillful hands, be able to supply its own demands. In other words, if each and every county of the State be not able to market its products away from home, they ought to be able, by systematic management, to raise enough tobacco, hemp, fruits, corn, hay etc. for its own commodity.

The soldier learns the art of military ingenuity and discipline in time of peace so that he will be able to defend himself and country in time of war; so ought the farmer learn the most advanced ideas of agricultural industry and application that he too may keep abreast of other business and professional lines for his own salvation and the country's profit.

GOOD ROADS. The Farmers Club is urged to constantly agitate the question of Good Roads and other needed improvements and necessities of the county. Such discussions and agitations of momentous importance and consideration to the agricultural and commercial growth of our county from a body like this, would tend greatly to assist, in my opinion, in bringing about more tangible results for the common good, not only to the farmer, but to the community at large. We argue that should a strong committee from a Farmers Club, by a vote of that body, appear before the Honorable Fiscal Court of our county urging the consideration of any question that effects the entire county it would lend more weight and influence toward reaching an equitable solution of the question at issue than any individual efforts however ably presented! "In union there is strength," and may we not add, a brighter hope toward reaching the cord of thought and action. Money properly expended on road improvement bears interest payable in comfort, convenience, opportunity and the saving of time and untold worry.

Trusting that the citizens of Knox County will take advantage of this offer to assist them to better the farming and other interests of our county as has been done in other sections of the State, the Editor of the Advocate or myself will take the names of any citizens of Knox County who are desirous of joining the Club, under the above terms, on Monday April 10th., the first day of Circuit Court. If we are successful in getting the required number of members—and by the way neither of us is a farmer, but we are materially interested in the progress of our country—the list will be forwarded to the Hon. Hubert Vreeland, Commissioner of Agriculture, Labor, and Statistics who will come either in person or send an able representative here to organize a Farmers Club for Knox County on Monday April 24th. at the Court House at Barbourville, Ky. if twenty or more names for membership is secured and the proper enthusiasm is manifested.

Very truly,
WILLIAM CARSON BLACK.

A TRIP

To the Coal Mines on a Locomotive.

Last Saturday afternoon in company with Mr. Charles Davis, we went aboard the 4 o'clock South bound train and upon arriving at Artemus three miles South, we left the L & N Ry. and boarded the tender of the "Dinky" leading over to Coalport.

The afternoon was delightful and the soft balmy air of the mountains was bracing and made the trip enchanting to one who is not accustomed to such experience.

There were perhaps thirty-five or forty passengers aboard, occupying every available inch of space from the running board on the engine to the tender. The crowd was made up of men, women and children, most of whom were residents of Coalport who had come out to Artemus for the ride.

Mr. Jackson the Engineer was a jovial, good-natured gentleman and is always ready to haul as many as can climb on and charges nothing for the trip.

The distance of about three miles was soon covered and we found ourselves in the little mining town of Coalport nestled back between two large mountains where sons of honest toil spend the day in digging the Black diamonds and lie down after the shades of evening and sleep in happy contentment.

We went to the commissary of the East Jellico Coal Company where we found shoppers by the score buying the necessities of life and laying in their store for the following Sunday.

From there we went to the home of Squire W. H. Nolin where we took supper after which we again boarded the "Dinky," and returned to Artemus where we had the pleasure of attending the meeting of Kenton Tribe No. 108 I. O. R. M. and participated in the installation of the New Officers Squire W. H. Nolin our Host being installed as Sachem of the tribe after which we returned to our homes, pleased with our trip and with the new acquaintances we had met during the evening.

CLEAN UP.

It is now time to clean up the rubbish and begin a vigorous use of the white wash brush, nothing is more unsightly than to see a lot of old tin cans, worn out shoes, and rubbish of various kinds accumulated about the premises, these things should all be cleared away and the premises sweetened with a fresh coat of lime.

Don't wait for the health officers to call on you to do what you know should be done, but proceed now to make the necessary renovation of the premises before the hot weather sets in and thus avoid the spread of diseases that are bred of such filth.

CORBIN GOES DRY.

Joins in with Sister Towns and Says the Accursed Rum Shall not be Sold by License Within Her Limits.

Last Tuesday was an interesting day in the history of our neighboring town of Corbin, from the fact the test was made at the ballot box whether or not spirituous, vinous and malt Liquors should be sold, bartended or loaned there.

The fight was an exceedingly fierce one from the start and was waged by both sides until the polls were closed, when the result showed 104 votes against the license to 81 for them.

All day on Monday the good ladies of Corbin assisted by reinforcements from this and other towns paraded the streets of Corbin and sang temperance songs and offered prayers that the accursed stuff might be banished from their midst.

This crusade was kept up almost all night and on Tuesday morning a company of perhaps fifty from Barbourville joined in to lend their moral influence to stamp out the rum traffic.

Although the rain was falling most of the day the good women never surrendered the fight but gathered at the polling places and stood in the mud and rain singing and praying that the evil that causes so much sorrow should be removed.

During the time they were assembled chief, Burrell Smith rode up to a commanding and threatening manner order them to disperse but the plucky little Barbourville women were not to be bluffed away so they remained where they were and continued their song and prayer.

Seeing that the bluff would not work, Chief Smith submitted to the inevitable and with a bowed head and crestfallen Spirit retired from the scene.

While the good people of Corbin have expressed their gratitude to those from Barbourville who so ably assisted in this fight, we feel that Corbin is not alone in the victory as Barbourville will be benefitted also by having this curse so near to us removed and while it will still be possible to secure rum from other places it is a victory to stamp it out there and one by one the strongholds may be broken up until finally it may be removed from the State.

We congratulate Corbin in her victory and trust that she may never return to the old habit, and that other towns may follow in the footsteps, until there shall be none left where the curse can be secured by license.

MISS ROOSEVELT

Said To Have Given Her Hand And Heart To Senator Beveridge.

Town Topics, just out, publishes the following:

"Miss Alice Roosevelt has surrendered her heart and promised her hand, and now wears upon her left third finger the jeweled token of her marriage engagement. The successful wooer is the eloquent 'Boy Orator of the Wabash,' Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana, and the formal announcement of the betrothal will be made at Easter. The news has just come from Washington, whence it is also learned that President Roosevelt is more than pleased, and has given the happy pair his parental benediction. There has been noticed for some months past a most agreeable change in the deportment of the fair Princess Alice. She has grown more womanly, more dignified, and altogether more lovable. She has put away her frivolity, while still retaining much of her charm of unconventionality, and the reason is now clear.

"She is in love." "Senator Beveridge is a widower of 43. His first wife was Miss Katherine Langsdale, of Greencastle, Ind., who died in 1900. The Senator is selfmade. He was a plowboy at 12, a rail-road laborer at 14, a logger and teamster at 15. Then he attended high school at Sullivan, Ill., later he read law in the office of Senator Joe McDonald, and, after being admitted to the bar, became associated with the law firm of McDonald & Butler, where he remained until beginning practice for himself. As a Republican campaign speaker he has for years been pre-eminent."

Crude Thoughts as they Fall from the Editorial Pen. Pleasant Evening Reveries.

THE HOME CIRCLE COLUMN.

A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as they Enter the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

IF you cannot love your mother and make her happy, you cannot truly love and make happy the heart of any woman.

THERE is nothing in life's experience that so quickly and effectively awakens in the heart those better elements that ally us "to angels and to God" as the sacred memories of home.

DEAR to us all are the friendships we formed during the period of our school life, and hard was the breaking of those ties, yet we cherish no such memories of our schoolmates as we do of home and mother.

MOTHER! your life is not insignificant. It is not and cannot be isolated from the universal significance, for your boy shall bear it into the great tide that never ebbs. The story of the fireside is written upon the altars of great cathedrals, in the senate chambers, and in the busy mart. It is inscribed in invisible characters upon the sides of steamboat and railway trains and on the marble fronts of the brilliant temples of trade. The great outward world of commercial storm and sunshine of laughter and weeping, of honor and dishonor, draws its life from the home. It is linked to the hearthstone by a thousand ties that run far under the surface of society.

LABOR is divine. The son of God was an industrious carpenter. Every man needs to have something to do. It is not only his duty but his right to do it. A divinely appointed means for making him safe for the life to come. Character is perfected, the divine possibility discovered only by labor. Labor saves the man and saves the world. In Holman Hunt's noble picture we see Jesus, the carpenter, sawing a board at the bench; the sun as it streams in from behind is caught by His figure at its toil and there is cast on the workroom floor the shadow of Himself, of His cross. As we do our day's work we are bearing the world's burdens, are helping to save the world unto the Divine carpenter.

THE HOME GIRL

Is the home girl becoming extinct? Are we no more to have the old-fashioned girls who knew how to cook and sew and make beds and sweep and wash the dishes, if necessary?

Are the girls of the future to know none of those useful occupations that made their mothers and grandmothers such good housekeepers and wives?

It seems that as a rule in this day girls do not learn to do the work of the house. Instead they learn to weave baskets and do pyrography and to paint badly on china or in water colors, and to dance and play rag-time on the piano. Some of them learn to gad about the streets and to drink more ice cream soda and eat more candy than is good for them.

Now if one has a genius for basket weaving and can turn it to some good use it is all right to weave baskets.

Or if one can do easily artistic pyrography, that is all right too. But time in doing these things when your mother is washing the dishes or cooking the dinner or making your bed, is time wasted.

There is no doubt that many unhappy marriages and many divorces result from the inability of young wives to properly perform the ordinary duties of a household. There is no more pitiable object than the wife who cannot perform the duties of a housekeeper through ignorance. What a humiliating position a young wife is in who is forced to confess to her husband, that she cannot cook his food and mend his clothes. She may never have to do these things, because her husband may be rich, but riches sometimes take wings, and if they do, the wife should be prepared to take up her share of the burden of poverty.

Foolish mothers are to often to blame for these tragedies in the lives of their daughters. They try to protect them from what they are pleased to call menial work.

Don't do it mothers. Teach your daughters to cook and sew and make beds.

You will thereby minimize the danger of your daughter being an unhappy wife or a graduate of the divorce court.

No, the home girl, God bless her, is not being extinct. She has only been temporarily crowded from the front rank by the girl of the period and will come to the front again in due time. The average girl can go down into the kitchen and make the same kind of bread "that mother used to make." She knows that the family cow gives sweetmilk and that buttermilk comes from the churn. It is barely possible that she knows how to set a hen and can drive a nail straight if you give her a good hammer. She can mend a pair hose and sew on a button right where it belongs, and she is the very kind of girl that the sensible youth wants one day to be the queen of his heart and the mistress of his home.

There are some girls who are spoiled by a little education. As soon as they get a little learning in their heads they immediately begin to figure on the emancipation of themselves so far as home is concerned. Mother's hands are already coarse and red, and it is better that she should do the menial work about the premises while the daughter indulges in some of the fads she acquired at college on money that the poor old mother helped to earn through toil and self-denial. It makes no difference to her that the tired old eyes are daily giving more evidence of being weary, and that the calloused spots on the dear old hands are growing larger. It is only mother, and she has had her day. A girl cannot be young but, once and mother has been a girl. Thus it continues until the tired and loving old mother is gathered to her reward, and when the girl sees the pallor of death upon the sunken cheeks and realizes that the end of it all has truly come, it is then that her heart is filled with remorse and she would give the world to call the loved one back that she might demonstrate to her she really did not intend to be unkind. But it is too late now. Mother has become a happy girl again.

The woman who is making a happy home in today is the womanly woman, and the womanly woman is the house-wifely woman. We do not mean by this that a woman should be made a hewer of wood and a drawer of water in any home for she has a nobler mission to perform, but we do mean that it is a great mistake for our daughters to become the heads of happy homes, when they are not qualified for the duties of the position.

Prof. R. E. Warren will represent Barbourville Institute at the Baptist Educational Conference which meets at Bowling Green April 12-14.

The Green Seal Paint withstands the wear of the elements far better than paint made by the old process of mixing by hand. Pigments and Liquids are thoroughly incorporated, thus assuring a finer and more durable product. For sale by F. C. Moore.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Institute Notes.

J. C. Mays entered school this week.

Rev. A. E. Brown was at chapel Monday morning and gave the students a lecture on the "Mountain of Education." He is the strongest man we have heard this season and is a great friend to the Institute.

He says that he expects to build two Dormitories on the Campus this season and will add four additional rooms to the main building. We learn this work is to begin by July of this year.

All off for Williamsburg April 17, to attend the Inter Collegiate Declaratory Contest. J. D. Stanberry and Omar C. Clark will represent the Institute. The Programme will be interspersed with excellent music.

On Tuesday evening the 18 of April, The Ball team of the Institute will play the team of Williamsburg Institute at that place. And on Tuesday night, W. J. Bryan will lecture in Williamsburg, so go to the Contest and you will be repaid.

Hear Peake at Institute Chapel, Friday eve. April 14, on "Take the Funny Side of Life." You will laugh all you desire when you hear his Wit.

Bailey's Switch.

Mrs. Margaret Warrick left Tuesday for Knoxville, Tenn. to have her eyes treated.—Tillman Cole and James McAbee of Tazewell, Tenn. were here last week and while here subscribed for the Mountain Advocate the best paper published in the mountains.—Jno. L. Dozier, of Barbourville was in our midst last Wednesday.—Caleb Burnett has completed a new house here for Mat Prendre, who will soon be one of our neighbors.—Jno. Longworth has exchanged his farm here for one in the bluegrass and will leave for his new home in the fall. We wish him good luck. W. S. Taylor.

Flat Lick.

Hauling staves and lumber is all the go now. We have about fifty teams on the road—prospects for more as soon as the roads get better.—Our town is improving somewhat, D. W. Shusher is having his house painted and H. C. Mills is having his store house extended longer.—H. C. Cole, of Barbourville was in town this week.—Mr. J. G. Reyholds is improving, will soon be able to resume his work in the store.—H. P. Cottengim, of Barbourville, was in our town this week.—Wm. Bargo, of this place was in Barbourville Thursday.—Miss Pearl Hager will soon be out again after a severe illness of typhoid fever.—J. R. Scalf, of this place has been holding a very interesting meeting up on Stinking Creek.—Our town is improving very fast, we have ten stores and trade is better than it was when we had four or five.

STATE CENTRAL

Committee Disposed of Some Important Business.

Last Tuesday the State Central Committee met in Louisville. R. W. Cole holding the proxy of Chairman Byrlee who was absent.

The contest from Bell County was taken up and disposed of by declaring the seats of the four county members who refused to meet and by so doing broke a quorum in the caucuses of the returns of the recent Congressional Primary, and ordered a new election in their precincts to elect their successors.

It was ordered that in all counties where no committee election has been held that an election be called for the purpose and in case the Chairman fail to do so that the State Chairman be authorized to call said meeting.

It was ordered and committee appointed to revise the rules of the party organization to report at next meeting of the State Central Committee.

KNOX CIRCUIT COURT.

S. B. Dishman, vs E. M. Word.

In obedience to a judgment of the Knox Circuit Court, rendered at its December term, 1904, in the case of S. B. Dishman, plaintiff, vs. E. M. Word, defendant, I will on the 10th day of April, 1905, it being the first day of the Knox Circuit Court, offer for sale at public out-cry at the door of the Court house in Barbourville, Ky., to the highest and best bidder, on a credit of six months, a house and lot lying on the North side of Main or Knox Street, in Barbourville Ky., bounded on the North by the lots of James T. Gibson and Mrs. Vellie Sewall, on the East by the lots of Mrs. Lillie Williams, on the South by Main or Knox Street, and on the West by the lot now owned by John G. Matthews. The purchaser will be required to execute bond with approved security, bearing interest from date, retaining a lien on the property to secure the purchase money and having the force and effect of a judgment.

Given under my hands as Master Commissioner of the Knox Circuit Court, this March 20, 1905.
